Election passed off quietly, about 3/4 vote being polled, 216.

All interest seemed to center on the election of Assessor. In this contest Dan'l Shaner, independent candidate, was elected by a majority of 21.

Sacred Concert—"The Daughter of Jairus."

In the First Congregational Church on this Friday evening will be given the Sacred Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus." The narrative is taken from the Gospels of Matthew, Mark and Luke. The music was composed by John Stainer, expressly for the Worcester Musical Festival, 1878, and is considered one of the best sacred compositions. Among the best numbers are the duet "Lore Dayne" (tenor and soprano); the solo "My Little Daughter" (bass), and the solo "My Hope is in the Everlasting" (tenor). Probably the most striking part of the work is an oboe solo of twenty-four measures in E minor, representing "The Wailing" followed by the Chorus of Women, "Sweet Tender Flower." This is strongly contrasted by a vigorous Male Chorus of unbelievers, "In the Death of a Man There is No Remedy." Let us see if his words be true! The Cantata closes with a Trio and Chorus in fugue form, "To Him Who Left His Throne on High."

DEATH TRAP

At the Head of Kerr's Island
Claims

Three More Victims, Possibly Four or Five.

A Shanty Boat Goes Over the Dam and is Torn to Pieces, all on Board Being Drowned. Names of Victims Unknown.

After an idleness of three years in the line of life-taking, the Ohio river dam at the head of Kerr's Island resumed operations at the old stand Thursday afternoon and adds one more horror to the long list that has given it the reputation of a veritable "death-trap."

A house-boat containing at least three persons, and possibly four or five, all unconscious of the fate impending, floated calmly down the West Virginia shore of the Ohio, passed over the dam and was torn to pieces in the fierce back-lash. Everybody on board was drowned.

The names of the victims and the place from which they came have not yet been ascertained.

The details of the calamity are very hard to obtain. The northbound Ohio River railroad train passed the spot just as the boat went over the dam. Passengers who witnessed the occurrence state that two men and a woman were seen on the craft, which was broken to pieces immediately after going over. The occupants were not seen afterward and undoubtedly were all drowned.

About two o'clock, as the little Marietta-Waverly packet Venus was on her up trip, pilot C. W. Rowland noticed the ill-fated boat coming down the river on the West Virginia side a short distance below Posey's landing.

On returning to Marietta the Venus overtook the craft, which was then but a short distance above the dam, a fact evidently unknown to those on board, as they were making no effort to escape. Pilot Rowland started after them, but soon discovered that the Venus herself would be in great danger of going over the dam, with a possibility of not being able to rescue the shanty-boat in the end.

There is now nine feet of water on the dam, with a three foot fall, a condition of affairs that meant certain disaster to the Venus, should she approach too near. The little steamer had forty passengers aboard, whose lives could not be put in jeopardy. Stopping his engines, and whistling a warning, Pilot Rowland called to Wm. Rowell, who lives on the island. Rowell ran at once toward the dam, but it is supposed arrived too late to be of any assistance.

At a late hour Thursday night a large crowd of people were assembled on the bank at the spot, and a number of skiffs were in use, searching for remains of the boat and its occupants.

A telephone message from Waverly, states that the names of the unfortunate persons have not been ascertained, but that there were at least three on the boat.

WHAT AND HOW TO EAT.

No man can lay down a rule of guidance for another man's stomach. Every stomach is a law unto itself. There are chronic dyspeptics who digest pork and beans better than any other food.

Much cold water should not be drunk during or after a meal. It chills the stomach and prevents proper digestion. The process of digestion can only be carried on at a temperature of about 98.

Foods are divided by chemists and physicians into three classes: (1) Those which supply energy and replace exhausted tissue; (2) those which supply only energy; (3) those which only repair wasted tissue.

While digestion is going on there is a much greater flow of blood to the stomach than usual. Some physiologists calculate that ten times as much blood is required during digestion as at any other time.

An uninvited appetite is the best guide in regard to what is safe to be eaten. A wild animal never makes a mistake in its diet; domesticated animals, in consequence of artificial feeding, may occasionally do so.

Three Sets of Delegates.
MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 8.—The Republicans of the Seventh Alabama district held their convention Tuesday and three sets of delegates were elected to St. Louis. The principal fight was between two factions representing Reed and McKinley. The Negroes also held a convention and elected delegates. They endorsed McKinley.

IN THE OIL FIELDS.

The Chinamen composing the greater part of the Yates Oil Company, sold their entire interest on Thursday to Kelley & Kennedy for $8,000.

The Sistersville Oil Review says: Yesterday evening after the Review had gone to press, the Carter Oil company reached the Big Injun sand, in its No. 1, on the Frank H. White farm in the Indian Creek territory and have a producing well about which there was much talk among oil people in town last night. The well is an extension of the Indian Creek pool north by east and is located on a 23 degree line from the Kyle wells. The drill had only tapped the top of the sand when it commenced to flow and made 2 feet of oil in the tank when the well was shut down for the night. This would indicate that it is a fair well and may prove to be a large one or possibly a small one. More can be definitely told about the well by tomorrow when it is drilled in.

The Indian Creek pool has already proved to be a very spotted field, as predicted some time ago in the Review. More money has already been spent in developing it than the oil produced from the wells has made. As one producer says, this has been so at the ratio of $3 expended to $1 made. The pool may be long and narrow; it does not seem to be any good south of the Kyle wells, and the Stoneking well on the 45-degree line west is very dry and would indicate that the pool does not run that way unless this Stoneking well is a dry spot. It is a very expensive field to drill in, and while it has some good wells it has some very dry holes.
